

As a museum -- with a living collection, our exhibits, displays and plants are two visits are exactly alike!

To get a feel for what you might see when you come visit the U.S. Botanic Garden, we encourage you take our virtual tour. You'll get a peek at our Conservatory and Bartholdi Park, but the plant displays and exhibits are likely to be different each time you come.

Find lots more ways you can connect with the Garden from home at www.USBG.gov/AtHome!

Virtual Tour

- Jump into a virtual tour in full screen

We've worked with Google Street View to gather 360-degree imagery throughout the Garden -- both in the outdoor gardens and also inside the Conservatory. Starting points are embedded below. You can interact with them to look around and move in any direction. Every garden room throughout the Garden can be made full screen, you'll see a map in the bottom left that will show in blue all the pathways through the Garden where you can virtually visit. Enjoy!

Proposed virtual tour starting points:

Outdoor Gardens, Rose Garden:

Conservatory Interior, Tropics House:

Outdoor Gardens, Bartholdi Park:

Audio Tour

- Explore the Garden through stories about our plants \(phone or web versions\)

Video Tours

- Explore a video tour series of the 2020 Orchid Show (Part 1 of the playlist below. See all videos by clicking the video's top right corner or click here to see the full playlist.)
- Tour the Garden with Deputy Executive Director Dr. Susan Pell and learn about plant morphology. (Part 1 of the playlist below. See all videos by clicking the video's top right corner or click here to see the full playlist.)

Explore the Garden through historic photos

- Explore photos of the Garden through 200 years

See daily photos and videos on our Facebook

- See videos and photos of what's in bloom now on the Garden's Facebook page and Instagram channel

Source URL: <https://m.usbg.gov/take-virtual-tour>